National Truth and Reconciliation Day	September 30 is National Truth and Reconciliation Day, formerly Orange Shirt Day. Orange shirt day is an Indigenous-led initiative that honours the children who survived Residential Schools and remembers those who did not. Why is Residential School an important issue for all Canadians to remember? IT MATTERS because the residential school system continues to affect First Nations, Inuit, and Metis families – people from vibrant cultures who are vital contributors to Canadian society. IT MATTERS because it happened here, in a country we call our own, a land considered to be a world leader in democracy and human rights. Help us remember that every child matters – wear an orange shirt on Friday, September 29
